

Context-dependent effects of marine protected areas on predatory interactions

S. Clemente^{1,2,*}, J. C. Hernández¹, A. Brito¹

¹Biodiversidad, Ecología Marina y Conservación, Departamento de Biología Animal (Ciencias Marinas), Facultad de Biología, Universidad de La Laguna, Avenida Francisco Sánchez s/n, 38206 La Laguna, Tenerife, Islas Canarias, Spain

²Present address: Biology Department, Villanova University, 800 Lancaster Ave., Villanova, Pennsylvania 19085, USA

*Email: mscllemen@ull.es

Marine Ecology Progress Series 473: 119–133 (2011)

Supplement. Temperature data for the study period

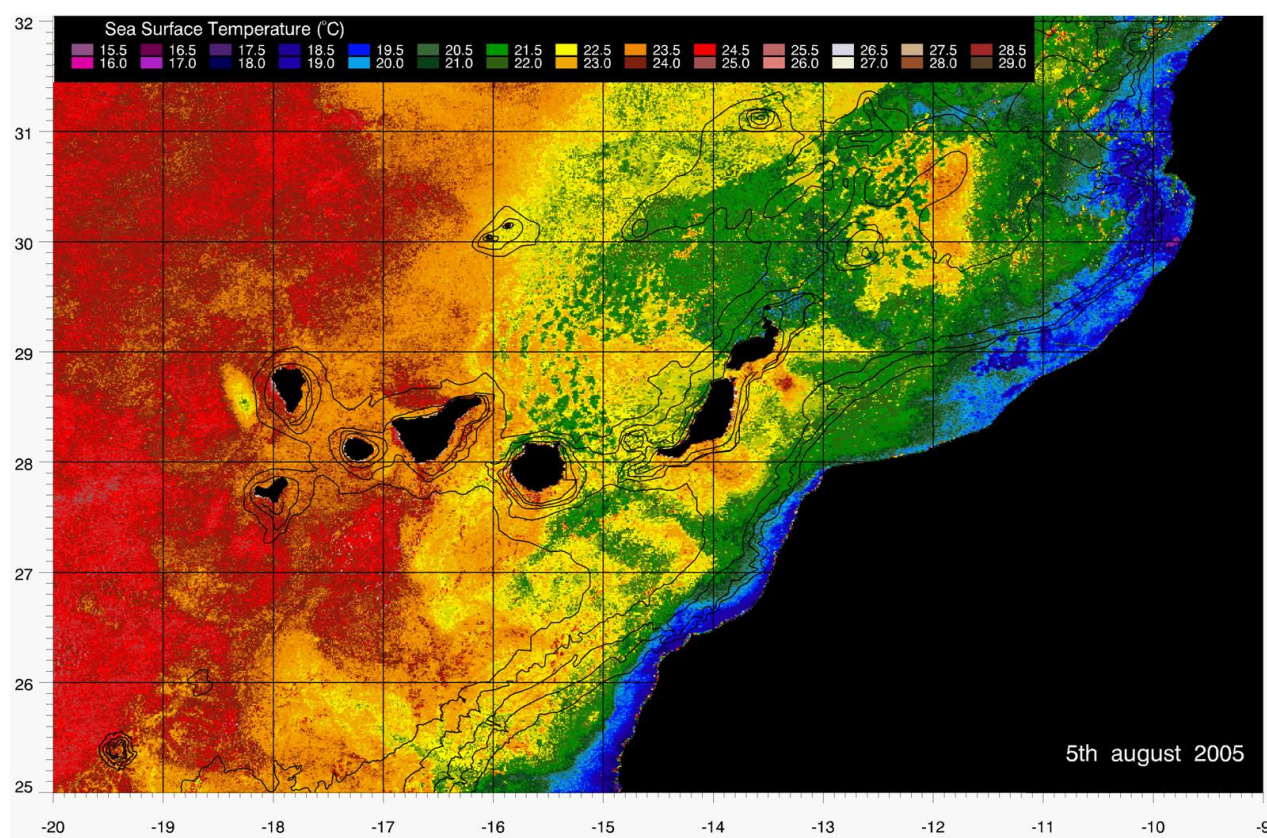

Fig. S1. Images of sea surface temperatures (SST) around the Canary Islands during summer of 2005, generated by satellites AVHRR/NOAA and obtained from the Jet Propulsion Laboratory (JPL) PODAAC Pathfinder