

Density- and trait-mediated effects of fish predators on amphipod grazers: potential indirect benefits for the giant kelp Macrocystis pyrifera

Alejandro Pérez-Matus*, Jeffrey S. Shima

School of Biological Sciences, Victoria University Coastal Ecology Lab, Victoria University of Wellington, PO Box 600, Wellington, New Zealand

*Email: alejandro.perezmatos@gmail.com

Marine Ecology Progress Series 417:151-158, 2010

Supplement. Grazing marks, nest, and feeding galleries of amphipods on Macrocystis pyrifera

Fig. S1. Pseudopleonexes lessoniae. (a) Grazing marks, (b) blade with single nest, and (c) close-up of single nest

Fig. S2. Bircenna macayai. (a) Grazing marks, (b) close-up of grazing marks, and (c) close-up of feeding galleries